1. I have had no further submission of material or communication regarding this survey since January 1991.
2. From informal discussion with Tony Scott I understand that SAF examinations are as yet incomplete but I do not know the results.
3. In conversation with Robert Higgins I understand that he has become more confident that the changes we saw originally were artefact but I have no detail.

My views have not changed, namely that the survey as designed has little to offer scientifically.

The issue of addressing research needs in this area should be referred to BSE R&D project management in due course.
